Fixes

- Resolved an issue where an incorrect printer was being applied to a Task definition after it was saved;
  - Resolved an issue where RTF files were renamed with a DOC extension when WordPad was used for printing DOC files;
  - Resolved an issue where SilentPrint would continually use 50% of the CPU after printing;
  - Resolved an issue where a failed Task would halt all other Tasks;
  - Resolved an issue where Adobe Reader 9 or Adobe Acrobat 9 would not print when installed on Windows Vista;
  - Resolved an issue where multiple Microsoft Office application processes were being started;
  - Resolved an issue with the sequential ordering of Tasks;
  - Resolved an issue where multiple log messages were being reported for printed and moved RTF when debugging was turned on.

Additions

- Added an MHT Word configuration parameter to determine whether Microsoft Word is used to print MHT files instead of Microsoft Internet Explorer;
  - Added an MS SharePoint configuration parameter to determine whether the tilde character (~) that prefixes SilentPrint's Pending folder name, is replaced with an equals character (=) so compatibility with Microsoft SharePoint is maintained.
  - Added a Compatibility tab to the Global Options dialog. Contains options for selecting a PDF printing application, and changing the way SilentPrint interacts with Microsoft Office applications;
  - Added support for Foxit Reader. For improved stability, it is now recommended that Foxit Reader is used to print PDF files instead of Adobe Reader and Adobe Acrobat.
